HYPNOTIZED HATS WAKE UP AND FIGHT

Newt Nott's Spirit of Thrift
Leads to Startling Scene in Easter Parade.

Great Notch, N. J., March 28.—The episode of two "hats" on the main thoroughfare of this village rudely disturbed the customary Great Notch Easter parade yesterday. The battling creations were worn by Mrs. Newt Nott and her mother, Mrs. Elvira Rue. These women, who were in the parade, attended two church services in the absolute innocence of the fact that the fowls which decorated their hats were alive.

Newt Nott had been commissioned by his wife to go to Newark and purchase two "chance" hats that were advertised as rare bargains. The cost, however, disturbed Newt's peace of mind. He did not believe that any rooster's profile and feathers could be worth $5. Roosters in the flesh were quoted at $1.75 in the Great Notch open poultry market.

Enter H. Pehle, Man of Ideas.
Newt's wife, Hugo Pehle, told of the extravagance of his wife and mother-in-law.

"Young Phineas Whacker'singer got a special talent for hypnotizing poultry," replied Hugo. "He can hypnotize that old Regal Minor of his so it will stand with its head and spin like a top. If you want to save your money you don't go and buy two hat frames and get Whacker'singer to hypnotize two of his roosters so they'll set on them hats for twenty-four hours."

"You wife and her mother put them hats away Sunday night and can sneak the bandbox near a window. Then roosters will fly out the window in the night, and the women folks can think rats ate their millinery trimmings."

"Phineas" shouted Newt Nott, and away he went to Phineas Whacker'singer, Jr. Phin surpassed himself as a poultry mesmerist, but he overestimated the duration of the trance.

With proud and haughty mien Mrs. Nott and Mrs. Rue set out on the afternoon Easter parade. Every woman they met grunted their teeth with envy at sight of those hats.

And Then They Woke Up.
Suddenly Newt noticed that the eyes of the black rooster on his wife's hat were blinking. Then he saw that the white rooster on his mother-in-law's hat was regarding the black rooster with hate. The black rooster stretched his neck again and uttered a sharp crow. In response Mrs. Elvira Rue roostered, reached over and jabbed savagely at the other.

Scores of Great Notchers gazed with popping eyes at the battle that followed. In rising up to combat the roosters lifted the hat frames and tore loose from the hatching. The birds came together in mid-air, then fluttered to the ground. The battle was furious, but Phineas Whacker'singer, Jr., arrived in time to stop the fight and take possession of his own property.

Newt assisted in carrying his wife and mother-in-law home, but did not remain there. He is visiting relatives in Pompton.

REVEREND STRIBLING GETS SECOND CALL

Petersburg Presbyterians Anxious to Have Waynesboro Minister.

TWO EARLY MORNING FIRES

Large Audience Attends Eagles' Memorial Service Sunday.

Times-Dispatch Bureau, 199 North Main Street, Petersburg, Va., March 28.

A meeting of the congregation of Tabb Street Presbyterian Church was held on Sunday after the morning service, the object being to receive the report of the commissioners sent to Lexington Presbytery in the interest of the recent call of the Rev. Charles R. Stribling, of Waynesboro, to Tabb Street Church. Mr. Stribling accepted the call to Petersburg subject to the action of the Lexington Presbytery, of which he is a member, but when the matter came before that presbytery, it declined to dissolve the pastoral relations of Mr. Stribling with his church in Waynesboro. The attendance at the presbytery was small, being only fourteen out of about sixty members, but its action was final.

A Second Call to Mr. Stribling. The report of the commissioners yesterday, embracing practically the same facts, coming to the recommendation, but the congregation voluntarily took up the matter of calling a pastor, and as unanimously as in the first instance, voted to extend another call to the Rev. Charles R. Stribling to take pastoral charge of Tabb Street Church and appointed commissioners to present this second call to Mr. Stribling at once.

These commissioners, James P. Banks and R. Randolph Jones, left for Waynesboro to-night and early tomorrow morning will place the call in Mr. Stribling's hands, with an earnest plea for his acceptance. As there has been no communication with Mr. Stribling since the adverse action of his presbytery, it is, of course, not known what his response to the commissioners will be.

Early Fires. The small frame store on Halifax Street owned and occupied by Thomas H. Powell, was destroyed by fire about 1 o'clock this morning, with its stock of groceries. How the fire originated is not known beyond the fact that it caught in some manner inside the building. The store had been closed since Saturday night. The loss is some $100 or $200, which is covered by insurance.

About 1 o'clock Sunday morning the roof of the residence of Mrs. Mary Banker, on Franklin Street, was discovered to be afire. The department was able to extinguish the flames before any material damage had been done. This fire is supposed to have caught from sparks from some neighboring house.

New Sunday School and Parish House. Plans have been made for the erection of a new building for Sunday school and parish purposes, to be erected adjoining the Church of the Good Shepherd in Blandford. It is understood that these plans will be considered by the congregation of a committee representing the church tomorrow. It is said the new building will be of brick and will have a seating capacity of 250, with rolling partitions to divide the floor space into rooms, or to use the whole as one room. The cost of the building, $1,000, said, will be met by subscription.

The Eagles' Memorial. The memorial services held in the Academy of Music yesterday afternoon by Petersburg Aerie of Eagles in honor of the dead of the order, were witnessed by an assemblage of fifty persons. The program for the occasion has been published in these columns. It was carried out to the letter. The memorial services proper were very impressive, and the music, both vocal and instrumental, was of an exceptionally high order.

The address by the Rev. Dr. David Klein was, in part, an eloquent tribute to the cardinal principles of the order—Liberty, Truth, Justice and Equality—which he urged, should predominate the lives of all members.

General News. Sunday was as beautiful Easter day as was ever seen, and the churches of every denomination were crowded with worshippers and brilliant with beautiful millinery. In the afternoon the streets were filled with fair promenaders and their escorts.

William Brown and Martin Coleman, negroes, were given sixty days in jail each by the Police Justice this morning for stealing meat from J. M. Newcomb's store, on Bollingbrook Street.

Excursion, fishing parties, picnics and baseball games were among the Easter enjoyments to-day. Nearly all the industrial establishments in the city gave their employees holiday.

The two lodges of the Knights Pythians and the Uniform Rank Company, of this city, have been invited to attend the reception to be given tomorrow afternoon and night by the Richmond lodges in honor of the supreme chancellor.

Deaths in Intercourse. Mrs. Mary Ann Moore, widow of Joshua Moore, one of the oldest residents of Chesterfield, died in Matocua yesterday afternoon, after an illness of one week. She is survived by two sisters—Mrs. Harriet Maddox, of Manchester, and Mrs. Dolly Lynch, of Matocua.

Joseph B. Lee and Miss Hettie Slate, both of this city, were married in Halifax, N. C., this afternoon. Charles Wheelhouse, who was thrown from the Belt Line trestle over the Cox Road, in Dinwiddie county, Saturday afternoon, is in good condition at the hospital to-day. His injuries, while severe, are not as serious as at first thought.

On Wednesday morning in Richmond the first Grand Temple of Pythian Sisters will be instituted. Mrs. Merriam of Muskegon, Okla., the supreme chief, will preside. Representatives from the Petersburg temple will be present. The fine Franklin Street window of Lavenstein Bros., which has several times been smashed in and robbed by burglars, was shattered this afternoon by accident, some one leaning too heavily against it.

GIRL ON DEATH BED WHEN SHE MARRIED

Pitiful Romance Only Became Known When Bride of Six Days Passed Away.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 28.—Through the death of Miss Jennie Portman of Staatsburg, her romantic marriage to Moses Jennings, of this city, has been revealed. The ceremony was performed six days ago, when the young woman lay on her deathbed.

Mr. Jennings, who is well known in mercantile circles here, met Miss Portman at a social function a year or so ago and fell in love with her. He was at first attracted by her beauty, but he was very much surprised when her engagement to Mr. Jennings was announced.

Though no definite date had been set for the wedding, it was believed the marriage would be in the early summer.

One day recently, while Miss Portman was making arrangements for the ceremony, she was stricken with the illness. The funeral was held yesterday.

After the consultation the physicians told her that there was no hope for her recovery. That evening when her lover called she told him.

If there was a thought in the mind of either of breaking off the marriage, it was not expressed. Instead both manifested a desire to be married as soon as possible. Although the girl was dying, she was determined to die soon, and that the union would be a short one. With the consent of the bride's family the services were held on Monday.

Several days later Mrs. Jennings seemed to improve and her husband had a feeling hope that the physicians had misdiagnosed the illness, and that she might recover. But in a day or two she suffered a relapse and died suddenly on Saturday.

During a part of the time that he was in the jail at Lebanon, Trent occupied a cell with Howard Little, who died a few weeks ago for the murder of a woman. Russell county. Trent says that sometimes he thought Little guilty, and sometimes thought him innocent. He made no confession to him, and his ideas of the man's guilt were secured simply from his general conversation.

BANKERS QUIZZED IN GRAF PROBING

Appear Before Grand Jury in Pittsburg Bribery Investigation.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 28.—The grand jury's program, which calls for the examination of nearly 100 directors and officials of six Pittsburg banks, in connection with the alleged bribery of Congressmen to secure legislation which made these banks official depositories for the city's money, was begun to-day. When the jurors came out of the star chamber this evening, however, their only report had to do with the formal indictment of thirty-four present and former Congressmen against whom indictments had been previously ordered in the grand jury's presentation of Friday last. The counts charged in the indictments to-day of Hugh Ferguson, William Brand and Charles S. Stewart, are for conspiracy and bribery in connection with the acceptance and distribution of $102,500 as bribes to other Congressmen. The other thirty-one indicted are charged with acceptance of the bribes.

During the day the grand jury had before it C. Baughman, president, and members of the directorate of the Second National Bank. Other banks represented were the Farmers National Bank, which issued during the day a statement denying that it paid any money to influence legislation, and the Commercial National Bank and Trust Company.

Although Judge Robert S. Frazer was ready to-day to hear the pleas of those indicted, no one who wanted an immunity badge, no further confessions were made.

At the request of the district attorney the court appointed Detective Robert Wilson, of Scranton, to special duty for the next four years in investigating the new money rackets, which have already led into exposures of graft and alleged jury fixing. The retention of Detective Wilson, who is believed to indicate a determination to go to the very bottom of all grafting, it was who, by fake bribery in connection with the wood rackets scheme, discovered for the Voters League how willing certain Congressmen were to sell their votes.

The grand jury will resume its sessions to-morrow to hear more of the bankers. The nature of their testimony to-day has not been disclosed.

To cheer me for a little while,
Transplanted now from earth to heaven,
Enshrouded in His eternal smile.

Thy fragrance sweet, which did infuse
Our home, now desolate and sad;
We sorely miss, but what we lose,
Heaven, where your angels are made glad.

I would not call thee back again,
To this lonely trial of grief;
No! in thy bliss alone remain,
Where we shall meet in after years.
